THE WORKER MUST BE WELL

In these days of sharp competition everyone who works should be keyed up to the highest pitch of efficiency. The rewards of business life go to the clearest thinkers, to the men and women who know and do things better than other people.

But who can do his best work when the health is impaired, when the appetite fails to demand the food necessary to sustain the body, when strength is lacking and ambition gone? Surely the part of wisdom is to begin at once to build up the body to its normal condition, and this may be done more certainly by the use of

than any other medicine. It checks hacking coughs, sharpens the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, restores flesh to the emaciated, and renews health and vigor. It is so agreeable to the taste that its regular use is a pleasure. Get it at your chemist's and be sure you get STEARNS'—the genuine.

THE BISHOP OF OREGON ON TREATMENT OF NEWSPAPERS

SPOKANE, Wash., May 10.—"News-paper men should be treated as allies instead of as spies and impertinent meddlers in things which do not concern them. We can take them into comradeship in the work we are doing and, by treating them as friends instead of enemies, secure their confidence, good will and cooperation."

Rev. Dr. Charles Scadding, Bishop of Oregon, said this in the course of an address on "The Secular Press as a Missionary Agency," at the biennial sessions of the Eighth Missionary department of the Episcopal church in Spokane, when high churchmen from Washington, Montana, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, California, Utah, Nevada, New York, Pennsylvania and several other states were in attendance.

Bishop Scadding intimated that the average minister does not know news, when he mentioned that frequently an item of vital importance is concealed in a mass of matter otherwise of not the least interest to the reader. On this point he said:

"If you could hear the righteous indignation and the unrighteous abuse, and, I fear, profanity, created in newspaper offices of Friday nights when all hands are called to 'fix up the church notices' for publication, there would be instant reform in this direction. I am told that week after week and year after year there are poured into the newspaper offices these carelessly written notices, often in almost undecipherable cigraphy, with no regard for the style of the paper for which they are written, frequently written on odds and ends of paper and often on both sides and thrown together in a haphazard sort of way.

"The task of preparing several hundred notices has become the most detested work in the newspaper offices, and every Friday night our civilizing influence on the working staff is in a large measure undone. It is only due to the newspapers that we be courteous, even in this small matter, and take pains to secure uniformity and cleanliness and then present well-dressed and carefully prepared 'copy.'

"In preparing matter for the press you should observe newspaper rules of composition: Tell your story in the first three lines—three words are better—and elaborate afterward. Then the reader cannot 'ring off' before you have told him the gist of what you have to say."

Bishop Scadding said the value of the newspapers as a missionary agency depends upon the willingness of the ministers to go and make some effort in assisting it; "and," he added, "in considering the subject it is necessary for us at the outset to appreciate not the theoretical function of the secular press, but what it actually is, and what it actually does for the people. It is not the 'molder of public opinion,' often it is not even the leader; but it does supply the facts, the fancies, the fallacies, if you please, on which public opinion is based.

"It must be borne in mind that the newspaper, even though it has twenty-four pages, has not a single line to waste. It pays thousands of dollars for matter it does not print, and it is safe to say that no newspaper uses half the matter poured in upon it by the press associations, its special correspondents and the public generally. The great bulk of this news matter is bought and paid for, though never destined to see daylight, not because it is not news, but because matters which the trained senses of the editor pronounce more important news crowd it out.

"Those same trained editorial senses are constantly on the alert for the important item. Just mention in the midst of three columns of really important church reports the mere incidental fact that the Rev. John Doe has resigned and that the resignation was accepted, and be prepared to turn out of bed at night and explain to half a dozen reporters all about the affair. The next morning the line of resignation may appear as three columns, while the three columns of church news will occupy scarcely more than that many lines. The editor knows that only three lines in your article contained the real news of the day and would help the sale of his paper.

"Now, it can not be argued that we should encourage sensational doings with the views of calling public attention to the church and its work. Even to a salacious morsel the editor himself would prefer a piece of news of an entirely different character, but he has his finger on the public pulse and he knows what is required. To me it is a certain indication when a newspaper shows disinclination to give space to an article that it will not be read if published.

"We can assume a different attitude to the newspapers. We can take a generous view of existing conditions, accept the newspapers as having a right to all our news and show them that we are in sympathy with them.

"If we are to make good use of the secular press we can not overestimate the importance of the makeup of our articles and news notes. I believe that there is much of our work that could be presented in such dress that it would be attractive to the editor and, consequently, to the people. I fully believe that the establishment of a news clearing house in the Eighth department under the management of our departmental secretary, to whom missionary experiences, news notes and brief church teaching could be sent for general publication in the secular press, would be an experiment well worth trying.

It must be remembered that the secular press is a democratic forum. The clergyman or layman who comes into this arena and mingles with the Attie demos must gird himself. The demos in its collective capacity is a juggernaut. It reminds me of what the colored porter in the barber shop said the other day, attributing his words to the 'good book.' 'The Lord,' he quoted, 'ain't got no respect for nobody.'

BALCH-SKELLY WEDDING.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—To the triumphs which it has been scoring in such rapid succession during the recent months wireless telegraphy added a new conquest yesterday. By its means courtship was carried to a successful issue, and in the marriage in this city of two persons of more than ordinary prominence the superiority of lovmaking via wireless over the slower and more conventional medium of the mails was clearly established.

The principals in this latest drama of love and adventure are John A. Balch, manager of the Wireless Telegraph Company at Honolulu, and Miss Helen Skelly of Butte, Mont. Both have a history and are a part of history.

Balch is a son of Dan W. Balch, who was connected with the famous Consolidated Virginia mine and was one of the first assayers of note of this city. Miss Skelly has been noted as being not only prominent in society in Butte, but also as being one of the most accomplished pianists in Montana. Her ability caused her to be in demand at social functions and amateur theatricals and her popularity was great.

Miss Skelly, also was once engaged to former United States Senator Lee Mantle, and in that comes the interest in the triumph of courtship by wireless. For a long period of years the wooing of Miss Skelly by the ex-Senator went on and, although no formal announcement of their engagement is known to have been made, that they were to be married was common gossip among all who knew them.

When Miss Skelly returned to this country from Honolulu, Balch kept up a running courtship by wireless messages to her, and these, as results proved, were more convincing than the letters that came from the former Montana Senator. Miss Skelly then made a second visit to Honolulu, and then the engagement with Balch was made and the one with Mantle broken off.

On Tuesday the steamship Alameda arrived from Honolulu, and on board was John A. Balch. Miss Skelly was here to meet him, and yesterday they were married in old St. Mary's church, Father Wyman performing the ceremony. W. B. Rountree acted as best man and Miss Grace Barton of Alameda was bridesmaid. The couple will take a short honeymoon and will then leave for Honolulu.

FOUND HIS HOME PEAS.

HART, Mich., April 20.—Few persons take more pride in western Michigan and the extent of its products than does ex-Senator James K. Flood of Hart. Yet he was a good bit astonished on his recent visit to Hawaii. He took a trip to visit the old volcano of Kilauea and its smaller crater, Halemaumau.

After gazing on a sea of red lava spreading and returning to a molten cauldron, smoke and steam rising with sulphurous fumes and a glare of fire shooting skyward, he took supper at the Volcano House, 4000 feet above sea level. And one of the chief dishes that there met his eye, was some Little Dot Hart Brand peas from his home town, and made hot over the never-ending fires of Halemaumau.
